You Hate How Bad Your And Must Do Something

Dear Friend,

You look at your legs in the mirror... and ughhhhhh.

You are frustrated how old and unattractive the varicose veins make you look.

Women (and men) with varicose veins report lower self-confidence and loss of self-esteem.

Many also report increased stress, anxiety, guilt, depression.

Don't you hate it when you could put on shorts or a skirt... but you don't because it would show your varicose veins?

And “beach time” can be a nightmare of excuses, hiding and just plain old misery.

Do you feel guilty you don't have sexier legs like other women do for their husband or boyfriend? And, even if your partner denies it, like he really wants you to?

If you are single, what would a man think if he saw your varicose veins? Would he overlook them and see your good features or would they stick in his mind? Do they show your age and “wear and tear”? Would he still desire you romantically?

Your disappointment over your varicose veins carries over into your life too.

Your mood sours. When your mood is down, it is only normal you are not as patient and loving as a parent or spouse – and this just makes you feel even worse.

They Make You Look Older, Less Attractive, And Put You At Serious Health Risk

And if this isn't bad enough, you hate it every time your varicose veins hurt, or become dry skin or itch. “What's wrong?” “Are they getting worse?” you wonder.

What if they get worse and you need emergency leg surgery? What if you can't walk anymore and need to be in a wheelchair?

Varicose veins are not just a cosmetic problem, but the health of your veins is also a very serious medical issue. Patrick Clancy MD states that each year, Varicose Veins Look— Before They Get Worse.

approximately

2.5 million

Americans are severely disabled by varicose veins.

But you don't have to be one of them.

You see, varicose veins often lead to venous disease. The valves inside your veins become damaged and may not close completely, allowing blood to leak backward or flow in both directions, causing:

■ Blood clots in the legs, arms, veins of the internal organs (kidney, spleen, intestines, liver, pelvic organs), in the brain (cerebral vein thrombosis), in the kidneys (renal vein thrombosis) or in the lungs (pulmonary embolism).

■ Deep vein thrombosis (DVT).

This is a blood clot occurring in a deep vein of your arms or legs. It is not life-threatening, but the blood clot can break free and travel through the bloodstream, where it can become lodged in the blood vessels of the lung (known as a pulmonary embolism). This can be life-threatening.

■ Superficial venous thrombosis or phlebitis – a blood clot that develops in a vein close to the surface of the skin. These types of blood clots do not usually travel to the lungs. However, they are typically painful. (continued)
